Pines Manor

1. Alexis and Michael were married at St. George Greek Orthodox Church, to which Alexis' family has belonged for two generations. 2. Following their reception, the bride and groom continued to socialize with their closest friends and family during their VIP after party downstairs at the Pines Manor. 3. The newlyweds shared their first dance to Lionel Richie's "Penny Lover," under a draped ceiling with crystals and flowers hanging above the dance floor. 4. Set on gold table linens were tall centerpieces of white hydrangeas mixed with purple flowers, gold toned roses, and ivy, as well as hanging crystals and candles. 5. Platinum Entertainment was the couple's first and only choice when it came time to choose a DJ. "Anthony rocked the dance floor all night," recalled Alexis. "He played the perfect mix of music for everyone." 6. "Bling" was the theme of the five-tiered wedding cake designed by Palermo's Bakery that featured fondant ruched ribbon and a crystal brooch, along with their Swarovski crystal monogram topper. "Palermo's is so creative and have such a passion for what they do," said the bride. 7. Alexis changed into a second party dress for the cake cutting, which she embellished with the same crystal belt worn with her wedding gown.

It was truly a chance encounter when Alexis and Michael met in March of 2007 at Dickerman's Ale House. Michael came in with his hockey teammates to celebrate winning their game, while Alexis was at the bar with her girlfriends. Although he teased her for her order—a "girly" Oatmeal Cookie shot—when he first talked to her, Michael and Alexis hit it off immediately and became inseparable after that night.

In August of 2010, the two were on vacation in the Dominican Republic. It was their first night there and Alexis was looking for shoes to wear to dinner. Michael walked up to her with a Christian Louboutin shoe box and inside Alexis found a beautiful cushion-cut diamond engagement ring. Michael placed the ring on her finger and even surprised Alexis with the shoes that came in the box. The couple set the date for July 2, 2011 and began planning their romantic wedding.

Finding the perfect place to host their reception wasn't hard at all. "Pines Manor is like a second home for my family and me," said Alexis, whose mother and brother work at the facility. "As soon as I got engaged my first call was to the Pines Manor to put the wedding on the books!"
